The Environmental crisis is one of the biggest challenges of 21st century. For this reason, environmental problems are now much discussed around the globe. One of the most glaring problems which the world faces today is the environmental pollution. Man has exploited nature excessively at the cost of the environment. The North eastern region, which is almost an environmental friendly region with maximum rainfall every year. Green trees and green Pasteur everywhere is no longer a tourist destination. The major environmental problem can be raised for deforestation, flood, industrial activities, coal mining operation, crude oil exploration, petroleum refinery, fertilizer industries, cement industries, automobile exhaust emission etc and also degradation of environment mainly associated with destruction of high hillocks, creation of big ponds, destruction of vegetations and trees, creation of ugly landscape, spreading out the under desirable debris from the mine to the nearby areas, closing/stopping of flow of natural streams in the mining and discharge of acidic mine effluent into the nearby water course, land etc. Besides its, the illegal migrants problem in Assam, Tripura, Meghalaya and insurgency and ethnic conflict, illiteracy, poverty, poor hygiene and mean for sustenance amongst the people are also contributing to a great extent to environmental degradation. To protecting of environmental pollution and degradation, we must have to learn to live in harmony with nature thereby protecting the environment and other thing beings that habit in the NE region. In other word, man should learn the art of live in harmony with nature for sustaining their future on this planet.
